They now have plenty of money to complete the works and put the property in good shape. The doctor left for the mines this morning and expects to have everything in working order in four

The mill of the company has capacity for working 48 tous of ore per day. It was erected some time ago, but was never completed and has never been They also have first class steam hoisting works and a working shaft 380 feet deep, with three compartments from there down. They have about two thousand feet of underground work, all in vein matter. The crosscut on the 200-foot level in the Gunsight mine cuts forty feet wide and is still in ore. The eroppings running over the mountain are oold, and show from three to seventy feet in width. The average of the ore in the Gunsight mine, as far as developed, shows not less than $60 per ton. The mines owned by the company are the Gunsight, Silver Girt and Eastern, all of which are patented. The company has assay, retort and laboratory buildings, a large blacksmith shop, maghouse and a number of cottages for their miners. They have three wells, with well houses, and cottages at the wells. A 3 inch pipe connects the wells with the mill. In the store rooms the company has a large stock of supplies; and six hundred cords of wood at the mill. In addition to the three mines mentioned the company has a mill privilege and 160 acres of land. There are at present 5,000 tons of ore on the dumps and 1,000 tons broken down in the Gunsight and Silver Girt mines, ready to lift. With the present plant, treat from forty to fifty tons of ore per day. The company has John H. Collier to take charge of the mine, whom, Dr. Chase says, has no superior in North

Four-fifths of the ore in these mines is milling ore and one-fifth smelting ore. The ore body is an enormous one, and croppings have been picked up which assayed $8,000 to the ton.

The sale of these famous mines to the resent company was brought about by Dr. Chase, and the officers of the company are R. Hilton Chase, President; the company.

When scarcely fifteen years of age, by equest of an older sister and consent of their parents, she accompanied the sister from their home in one of the Western States to San Francisco, where, by previous engagement, the sister was married to a well-to-do merchant. For a few weeks everything ran smoothly and both sisters were drinking deep of happiness, until one morning the brutal rother-in-law said abruptly to the timid young girl in that city of strangers
"I didn't marry you, and I will not sup port you; you must get out and rustie!" Merciful, compared with this shock, would have been the cruel bullet that afterwards found its way through her pure young heart. Though young timid, and (under such circumstances azine, tool house, office, store, boarding to herself) dangerously beautiful, educated, refined, in a strange city, and un used to drudgery, she at once quitted her sisters's house forever, and sought an intelligence office. Here she was overjoyed to find a situation at $50 per nonth, board and lodging, was at her mmand at Elko, Nevada, to wait on table at a small eating house near th railroad, and that her fare would be paid to Elko and the amount deducted from

On her arrival at Elko she was met a the cars and heartily welcomed as " my little beauty" by as brutal looking and echerous looking old beast as ever as sumed the form of man.
